"ADDO ELEPHANT NATIONAL PARK: THE ULTIMATE SAFARI HAVEN"

Addo Elephant National Park, located in South Africa's Eastern Cape, is a premier wildlife sanctuary renowned for its thriving population of African elephants. Spanning over 1,640 square kilometers, the park offers diverse landscapes including dense bushveld, rolling plains, and rugged hills, providing a habitat for over 600 elephants as well as a wide array of other wildlife such as lions, buffalo, and zebras. Established in 1931 to protect the last remaining elephants in the region, Addo has since grown into a significant conservation area that supports rich biodiversity and offers visitors exceptional safari experiences. Its well-maintained roads, waterholes, and guided tours ensure an immersive and educational encounter with Africa's magnificent wildlife.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Addo Elephant National Park spans over 1,640 square kilometers (633 square miles), making it one of South Africa's largest national parks and a vital sanctuary for its large elephant population.
- While known for its elephants, Addo also supports a wide range of wildlife including the Big Five, as well as rare species like the flightless dung beetle and the endangered black rhino.
- The park extends to the Indian Ocean, where visitors can spot marine life such as dolphins and whales, adding a unique coastal dimension to the wildlife experience.
